The objective of this file is to test transitions. The restructured text specification says that:

> The syntax for a transition marker is a horizontal line of 4 or more repeated punctuation characters. The syntax is the same as section title underlines without title text. Transition markers require blank lines before and after.
>
> ...
>
> The processing system is free to render transitions in output in any way it likes. For example, horizontal rules (<hr>) in HTML output would be an obvious choice.

So, let's try a transition here.

And this should be after it.

We also put a transition in the header and one in the footer, but docutils crashes on doing it that way, so we add "headerSeparator" and "footerSeparator" to the page template in the stylesheet.